And Now the Hustle
Begins in Earnest.THE CANDIDATES ARE MAKING THEIR LAST FORAYS.Jim Tillman Supports Talbert—The Latter
Arrived in the City Yesterday—Mr.
B. A. Morgan a Candidate for Speakership.

[The State, 31st.]

According to the constitution of the Democratic party the second primary will be held one week from next Tuesday. It has taken longer than usual for the returns to be tabulated in such a way that the candidates could tell "where they were at," but those who saw from the beginning that they were in the second race have lost no time and have been organizing their forces for the second contest.

Colonel Talbert has come to Columbia and has established headquarters at the Columbia hotel. He and Jim Tillman held a conference Friday night and it was common talk on the streets yesterday that Jim would support Col. Talbert. This will occasion no surprise since the incident of the mail miscarriage at Pickens was slurred over.

After spending a few days in Columbia, Capt. Heyward has gone to Spartanburg. There his mail may be addressed until the end of the week. He is quite sure of election, and was not surprised at the size of the vote he received in the first primary.

Congressman Latimer is at the Columbia hotel and Mr. John Gary Evans is at Wright's. Each is using every effort to rally support and the fight between them may become acrimonious before the next week is over.

In days gone by it was a fad for politicians to decry extravagance of the State colleges. The fight against these institutions has become less determined every year, and some times those most earnest in their fight for decreased appropriations have talked with less vigor. Lexington is one county which has always elected a delegation of such statesmen, but it seems that the spell has been broken, for Mr. John Bell Towell was returned to the legislature by a handsome vote, and he spoke fearlessly and earnestly for liberal—though not extravagant—appropriations.

It was announced yesterday that Mr. T. Yancey Williams of Lancaster and Mr. M. L. Smith of Kershaw had been here organizing their campaign for the speakership. A formidable opponent has appeared in the person of Hon. B. A. Morgan of Greenville, who made a fine record in the House last year. Mr. Morgan was returned to the House by 4,335 votes out of 5,200, an almost unanimous endorsement when it is considered that there were ten candidates in the field.

The closeness of the race between Messrs. Croft, Bellinger and Thurmond in the second congressional district excited considerable comment. There were but 125 votes difference between Messrs. Croft and Bellinger, and Mr. Thurmond pushed for third place, losing out by 145 votes. From a geographical standpoint Mr. Croft appears to have the advantage, but Mr. Bellinger is a splendid campaigner, and with his record his friends expect to see him in Washington next March as Col. Talbert's successor.

In the Third congressional district there were seven candidates. The two from Anderson lost, although that is far the largest county, and Mr. Wyatt Aiken, of Abbeville, led, although there were two others from his county in the race. Dr. R. F. Smith, of Pickens, is in the run over. He is said to be strong before the people and the finish will be close. Mr. Aiken has Newberry and Greenwood back of him—geographically speaking, Anderson lies between them and there the fight will be pitched.

It has been a question much discussed as to what strength Mr. Ansel would have exhibited in the second race. It was gratifying to him in the honor of another's victory to have a great many new found friends call upon him at Wright's hotel and to tell him that if he missed it in votes he did not fall short in the esteem of his countrymen. Mr. Ansel was as happy as a school boy over the landslide to him in the eighth judicial circuit—the old "fighting eighth" as Gen. McGowan used to call it—where Ansel was solicitor and where he kissed the babies and greeted all the people in his hearty way for years. He says he goes back to his home stronger before the people than when he started out, and thinks that he was not defeated—but just failed to win.

News was received here yesterday that Gen. Moore had been defeated for re-election to the State senate from Hampton county. And thus are the political landmarks passing from the stage. His successful competitors is Mr. E. F. Warren, of Hampton, a lawyer. He won by 35 votes. Gen. Moore was very representative from what was old Beaufort county before it was divided to form Hampton. Gen. Moore was very active in the movement to establish the new county and from 1884 to 1890 he served as that county's senator. After his voluntary retirement Maj. W. H. Mauldin represented the county in the senate until his death two years ago, when Gen. Moore was sent to fill the unexpired term, having defeated Gen. Wm. Stokes for this honor. Mr. Warren has never been identified with the general assembly.

Senator John L. McLaurin passed through the city yesterday on his way from the up-country to Bennettsville. It is said he intends to make Greenville his home.

Senator J. Q. Marshall is here from a summer vacation in the mountains. Col. Marshall is in fine health and is looking much better than at the beginning of the summer. He said yesterday that he would have no trouble to get the senate to pass a bill against the labor of little children in the cotton mills. He has not yet had time to canvass the situation with regard to the house of representatives, but is quite hopeful that the bill will get through at this session.

A NEW PRESIDENT
FOR CLEMSON COLLEGE.DR. P. H. MELL OF GEORGIA UNANI-MOUSLY ELECTED BY BOARD.A Man of Wide Reputation—For the Past
Twenty Years He Has Been Connected
With the Alabama State College.

[Special to The State.]

Anderson, Aug. 30.—R. W. Simpson, chairman of the board of trustees of Clemson college, telephoning tonight, says that Dr. P. H. Mell, who was today elected president of the college, is a native of Georgia, but has been connected with the Alabama Polytechnic institute at Auburn for the past 20 years. He was most highly recommended to the trustees and every member of the board feels that the right selection has been made. The names of a number of other gentlemen were presented to the trustees but after careful deliberation Dr. Mell was chosen. Dr. Mell is 52 years old and is a member of the Baptist church. He is a distinguished educator and is said to possess in a high degree the qualities that were desired in a president for Clemson. It is understood that he will accept the position and will come to Clemson at once in time to be present at the opening. The college opens Sept. 10 and Col. Simpson says the prospects are very bright for the next session and that the barracks will be filled with students.

THE COMMERCIAL AND AGRICULTURAL VALUE OF FERTILIZERS.

What is known as the commercial value of fertilizers as published in agricultural bulletins and similar documents, is a valuation made up by adding together the average value of the chemical ingredients which are contained in the fertilizers.

The agricultural value of a fertilizer is variable according to the skill of the farmer and according to the crop, and according to the seasons. It is crop, and the seasons. It is the practical result obtained in applying the fertilizer. The two values ought to be about the same, and on the average they probably are about the same, but the individual farmer who gives careful personal attention to his values will be able to make considerable difference in his results by studying the underlying principles. The chemical ingredients which are recognized as imparting commercial value to fertilizers are nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash. There is but one source of phosphoric acid which is at all practical and which is made by the manufacture of fertilizers in the South. This is acid phosphate, which is made by treating phosphate rock with sulphuric acid. The most ordinary source of potash is kainit, which is mined in Germany. The phosphoric acid and the potash, which are derived from these sources, are about the same in their results on crops as the phosphoric acid and potash derived from any other sources, but the sources of nitrogen are numerous. This is the most important and expensive ingredient in fertilizers.

The commercial value of fertilizers, based on the analysis of the contained nitrogen, is reckoned just the same no matter from what source the nitrogen is obtained, and this fact is apt to mislead the farmer in his estimate of the kinds of fertilizer to use for certain crops. For example: a fertilizer containing nitrate of soda contains a splendid form of nitrogen, and one which is very soluble; therefore, it is very good for early vegetables and quick growing crops, but it is entirely too soluble for use in the cotton crop. The cotton plant is of slow growth and needs to have its food supplied throughout a long interval. A fertilizer containing cotton seed meal, having the same amount of nitrogen as another fertilizer, and of nitrate of soda, is much more valuable to the cotton plant, even at the same commercial value, than any other kind of fertilizer. The nitrogen in cotton seed meal is all soluble, but it requires some time to be put into complete solution. This is exactly what slow-growing crops like cotton and corn require, and it is the same thing, the source of ammonia. All fertilizers containing nitrogen in any form are generally known as ammoniated fertilizers. Let every farmer see to it that his fertilizers are ammoniated with cotton seed meal, and as he knows he can not get the meal to better advantage than from any of the local mills of the Southern Cotton Oil Company of the Carolinas and Georgia, or through their headquarters at Columbia, S. C., Augusta, Ga., Atlanta, Ga., Savannah, Ga., and Goldsboro, N. C., or Charlotte, N. C.

yesterday of the election of Dr. Mell to the presidency of Clemson college. Dr. Mell is known to a number of South Carolinians and it is believed that he is in every way fitted to make a successful and creditable administration.

He is a son of one of the most distinguished ministers ever produced in the Southern Baptist church, Rev. R. H. Mell, D. D., who was for years president of the State Baptist convention and the author of Mell's Parliamentary Practice, a book frequently referred to by Thomas B. Reed.

NATURE.

Woman's Constitution.

Beginning at the time when girlhood blossoms into lovely womanhood, through all her life, until the first few silver streaks proclaim advancing age, woman's days of cold and suffering come again, just as the moon continues everlastingly to grow and wane, and bring her weakness, headache, chills, discomfort and depression; yet she bears her burden patiently and with rare courage. The only relief she may gain is through alleviation, strengthening herself, insuring quiet nerves and rest.

BRADFIELD'S FEMALE REGULATOR

will warm her through and through, alleviate her suffering, relieve that depressing pain, strengthen her nerves, drive away that sinking dull faintness, stop that headache, so she her like a mother's hand, and carry her safely and comfortably through her troubles.

There will be no obstructed periods. The ever recurrent and monthly moon will follow regularly upon each other thirteen times a year.
